Dress Code

The objective of the Kling Memorial Library in establishing a business casual dress code is to allow our employees to work comfortably in the workplace. Yet we need our employees to project a professional image for our patrons. Business casual dress is the standard for this dress code. Because all casual clothing is not suitable for the library, these guidelines will help you determine what is appropriate to wear to work.

Clothing that works well for the beach, yard work, exercise sessions, such as worn blue jeans or yoga pants, are not appropriate for a professional appearance at work. Clothing that reveals cleavage, your stomach or your underwear is not appropriate for a place of business. Torn, dirty, or frayed clothing is unacceptable. Any clothing that has words, terms, or pictures that may be offensive to our patrons is unacceptable.

No dress code can cover all contingencies, so employees are expected to exert good judgement in their choice of clothing to wear to work. If you are uncertain about the acceptable business casual attire for the library, please consult with the Library Director. If clothing fails to fit the business casual standard, as determined by the Library Director, the employee will be asked not to wear the inappropriate attire to work again. If the problem persists, the employee will be sent home to change and disciplinary action may be taken. Certain days can be declared dress down days. On these days, jeans and other casual clothing may be allowed, such as Saturdays, work days and program days for the summer reading program as determined by the Library Director.

Grievance

Any concerns or disagreements among the library staff shall be resolved quickly and informally, if possible. If a problem cannot be satisfactorily resolved, all parties involved shall meet with the Board of Trustees to review the situation. The decision to settle a dispute shall be final.
